The Admiralty and Oil Fuel. At to the strategic value of oil fuel for the Navy, it is only necessary to recall Mr. Churchill's speeches on the subject last March, extracts from which are given in the Blue Book. The First Lord claimed for oil driven warships a great excess of speed, an increase of at least 40 per cent, in radius of action, and an increase of quite 25 per cent. in fighting strength, because, as the use of oil enables refuelling to be carried out at sea with great facility, the British Fleet would have the special advantage of not being forced to leave its fighting position in order to re-fuel. Oil can be easily fed from a tank steamer to a warship at sea.

.The result of the motion submitted by the First Lord of the Admiralty in the House of Commons on Wednesday clearly indicated that Parliament, is entirely in favour of Government's purchase of large quantities of oil fuel for the Navy. That approval, we feel sure will be heartily endorsed throughout the Empire, as it is unquestionable that oil fuel will play a very important part in the equipment of all Navies in the future.

Health of Hongkong. The most prominent fact is that notwithstanding the enormous growth of the population and the building boom which is attacking the outlying districts as well as the city, the staffing of the very important department entru-tell with the health of the community remains very much the same as it did some years ago when ideas of sanitation were rather more crude and the problems confronting the authorities rauch less. intricate than they are to-lay. The Sanitary Department is constantly twitted with being a "spender" and a non-producer of revenue and as such does not generally receive the mede of praise it deserves. It only remains to be said that the general death rate of only 21.6 per thousand of the population is a very creditable showing for the work done, and compares most favourably with that of the largest cities at home, where the Asiatic scourges of plague, malaria, small pox, beri-beri and cholera have not to be contended

Japan's Military Spirit. A little practical experience of shortcomings does more good than reams of moral sxioms, and the fact that such corruption is possible, even amongst those who were supposed to be above suspicion, will make for greater caution. Another direction in which the revelations will do no harm is in reducing the extravagant prestige of the Services and in enabling the Government to face with more confidence an influence which at one time threatened to over bear the rightful needs of other departments of human autivity in the country. The revelations. in fact, have given the civiliansa good weapon with which to meet overbearing demands in military and naval matters, demands which have too often been considered as beyond criticism. Foudalism did not die with ite formal abolition; traces of it are still to be found; of not the least obvious are those which surround the carrying of arms with a sacred halo, so the honour and support of which where pections must substave. We cannot escape the fact that Japan is a warlike nation and that the military spirit runs high, We also cannot escape the fact that such predominance is calculated to disturb and retard that industrial development which alone will enable the nation to maintain the position it has won.

Inoculated Rabbits Stolen. A theft likely to be fraught with the direct consequences to the perpetrators, and perhaps to many innocent people as well, has been committed in the suburbs of Bouncho, near Marseilles. Thieves penetrated at night into the garden of Dr. Bonnefoy, a bacteriologist, and took a number of rabbits which had been inoculated with the virus of rabies, tuberculosis, typhoid, and other deadly and contagious diseases. The police have made every effort to trace the thioves before they have eaten or sold the rabbits, but so far without success.

A COUNTER PETITION.

Not long ago, it will be remembered, a big meeting of the Sailors' and Firemen's union was held in Liverpool, whereat a strong and unanimous protest was registered against the employment of Chinese firemen on British ships. We learn now from the Home Asquith say this at first, instead of and a pair of shoes and other papers that, as an offset to that protest, and to the demands which it embodied, the Chinese boarding-house keepers, grocers and firemen of Liverpool have addressed a petition to their ambassador, been quite easy for him to have theatre continues to provide an praying for his intervention. Many of the points raised by the acceded to the women's wishes attractive bill of fare for its make. petitioners are sound and sensible and, it must be owned, constitute something in the nature of a grave rebuke to the Union. They show, it quite clear that the subject on programme now being shown, a among other things, that ships employing Chinese labour carry an which he was prepared to listen powerful drams, entitled "Sold additional Number 1 man and a boy cook "which raises the wages to them was their industrial, and for a Title," is full of interest paid by British shipowners to an amount equal to, or nearly, that not their political grievances. paid to British firemen" a statement which, if correct, rather destroys the Union men's contention that Chinese are employed merely to A Tardy Recognition of Services. pictorially reported by Pathe's save money for the owners. .

Then follows a list of reasons why the petitioners have felt bound to approach their ambassador; chief among which are that many of the men hail from British writory, e.g. Hongkong; that thousands of British subjects are holding lucrative positions in China; that Ohina trades largely with Great Britain and therefore claims reciprocity; that the firemen live quietly and peaceably in England, and that, unless they were reliable and trustworthy, they would not be employed in such large numbers on British vessels. Taken at face value their arguments are good and sound. Indisputably many of the firemen hail from Hongkong; but far more do not. Perhaps the less said about the claim to reciprocity on the score of China's trading largely with England, the better; at any rate for the present; China's attitude towards commercial treaties—particularly as regards the opium stocks—is rather too fresh in the minds of our Hongkong readers for them to see eye to eye with the petitioners on this point. That the firemen "live quietly and peaceably in England" again, must not be taken too literally. We had recently an opportunity of discussing direct) that when Great Britain that very question with a well-known detective at Home, whose work lies mainly among the Chinese, and this gentleman spoke in anything but flattering terms of the bulk of the aliens where lawabiding was concerned.

But the petitioners' final argument is not to be put aside out to their cost. easily, and we believe that most Hongkong ship-owners, skippers. and chief engineers will readily endorse it; as a general whole these men are industrious, sober, capable, and at least as obedient as European firemen. Even their side steps into the realms of boycotting are no more tyrannous or irritating than the Britisher's readiness to go on strike at a word from his almighty union. When. some twelve months ago, the Firemen's Union protested so strongly Bible were sent out in 456 against the employment of sliens we argued that to employ British. ers as firemen on boats passing through the Tropics, is next to an Bible was in 112 languages, the impossibility, for climatic reasons alone. We also suggested—and Testaments 111, and at least one we adhere to our suggestion—that the Union's real motive for objecting to the Chinese was that, so long as they are employed, it will never be free to tyrannise over owners and the public at large with ing of the British and Foreign its eternal threat of strikes. The Muzzling Order.

Despite the official requirement that all dogs in the Colony shall be muzzled, numbers of the canine tribe may still by seen roaming about without muzzles. And that fact sometimes results in unnecessary injury to other doge, as an incident we witnessed yesterday afternoon proved. CHRISTIANITY IN JAPAN

A Japanese Episcopal Clergyman's Views.

So much has been said in the liome press of late, with regard Lower level 8 a.m. Temp 80; to the possibility of Japan's becoming a Christian country, that we think our readers may find interesting matter in the views expressed to the Telegraph the other day by a Japanese Anglican clergyman while passing through Hongkong ou his return from a trip round

The Rev. J. H. Kobayashi, our informant, tells us that he became a Christian at the age of niueteen. After being educated at the Government Middle School, and later, at the American Episcopal College, Tokyo, he proceeded to the United States and, having studied theology, for four years at Cambridge, Massachusetts, was ordnined deacon in 1897 and priest the following year.

Mr. Kobayashi takes a sober, and yet a sanguive, view of the present and ultimate success of Christian missions in his country. Numbers.

"Of course, you may say it is early days to talk," he said, "for, in a general way, and not including the wonderful efforts of the early Justit missionaries, Obristianity may be said to be only filty years old in Japan. I have nothing game was most holly contested, with me to refer to, but, speaking offhand, I should say that the total Christian population is about two hundred thousand, composed, roughly, of sixty thousand Roman Untholics, forly thousand Greeks, twenty thousand Anglicans, the remainder belonging to the various dissenting sects.".

Asked as to how the Japanese people in general regard Christiunity. Mr. Kobayashi said that the educated classes may be divided into three groups in this Christianity, In official circles the outlock is not unhopeful. Two years ago a religious conference was opened by the Vice Minister for the Home Department, for the discussion of Budchism, Shinto and Christionity; and I believe this has been resumed during the present year by the Minister of Education. I regard all this as decidedly a good sign for it is a public recognition of the necessity for religious training, and moreover, it is the first time that the claims of Christianity have received any salute. sort of official notice. FOR WHAT PURPOSE?

Claim for $580 in the Summary

This morning in the Summary Court before Mr. Justice Hazeland, Cheong Chap-hi, a trader of Kowloon City, sued Wong Kwai-pak, 272 Des Vonz Road, claiming the sum of $580 being money received by the defendant for the use of the plaintiff on December 17, 1912.

Mr. Davidson, of Mesers. Hastings and Hastings, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. C. Faithfull for the defendant.

Mr. Davidson at the outset informed his Lordship that unless his friend admitted the receipt of the money, he would have to ask for an adjournment, because the witness who confirmed the plaintiff's story was away when they tried to get hold of him and had only returned to the Colony that morning.

Mr. Faithfull admitted the receipt of the money, but that was all he would admit.

Mr. Davidson said the plaintiff remitted the money from Kwangtung to the defendant. the money being placed in the bank. The money was not intended for any particular purpose. It was deposited with the defendant and when plaintiff endeavoured to obtain possession of it he failed to get it.

Plaintiff in the box denied a suggestion by Mr. Faithfull that he sent the money for the express purpose of paying for 1,000 who is to open at the Victoria Standard Oil Company, who is preference shares in the Tung Theatre on June 22, Straits papers eaving Hongkong to take up the Phonomonal Orules. The Carnegie Institution's ship Carnegie has just completed a croise of 100,000 miles, during which it has sailed the waters of all the oceans while her staff was engaged in the work of charting the magnetic lines of force and other data of the seas. The famous survey yacht consumed four years in this undertaking and the distance which she covered is equal to seven times the circumnavigation of the globe. This year the ship will begin a ornise upon the North Atlantic Ocean, and with the beginning of next year she will pass through the Panama Canal and cover the Bouth Pacific and South Atlantic. The Carnegie was especially constructed for the purpose of magnatio surveys. All the materials entering into her building are non-magnetic. All the met ! parts of the ship are of brass and copper so as to produce absolutely no effect upon the delicate magnetic measuring instruments. The cutlery used aboard is of Mexican silver, the anchors are of heavy bronze, and the auxiliary angine is built entirely of brass ad copper. The yacht is equip ped with sails, brigantine rigged and under full canvas she canmake 200 knots, or about 375 liles a day.

Unwieldy Levisthan.

New York, May 21.-The Vaterland marred an otherwise successful trip to-day by a delay of four hours in entering the slip, at the Hamburg-Amerika piers in Hoboken. She had to fight with a strong sbb tide and a strong wind, and this fight was. accompanied with many exciting. incidents, in the course of which goveral tugboats narrowly escaped being crushed between the immense bulk of the vessel and the piers. When the liner arrived opposite Hoboken at 9.30 a fleet of 15 tugboats found it impossible to swing her broadside against the tide. In order to avoid crashing into the piers she backed and drifted down stream a distance of a mile. where for more than an hour she blocked the ferry traffic between Jersey City and New York. Thedeparture of the Vaterland from: New York this morning in the same way as her arrival, was fall of incident. The giant liner sank a coal barge and dragged from their morings two large freight minds of the port authorities regarding the navigability in narrow watersof vessels exceeding 900ft. in length. Attended by two tugs, the Vaterland backed ont of her slip on the New Jersey side of the Hudson River under herown steam, Herlength almost spanned the river. Apparently Captain Ruser of the Vaterland miscalculated the strength of the liner's engines, for the vessel swung backward until within 3ft, of the end of Pier 51, belonging to the Morgan Line. The churning of her screws sucked the water out of this and the adjoining piers, causing the hawsers of the El Valle and the Topils, of 4,605 and 5,000 tons, to snap with a loud report. The two steamers crashed against the bulkheads, smashing their own rails and the rails of the pier before being swept riverward. The next moment the Vaterland engines, now reversed, sent vast volumes of water back into the piers, overturning the barge Ulster, laden with 1,700 tons of coal, and forcing the two steamers violently backinto their original positions. That the limits of size have been reached for the time being in the development of the giant liner is the opinion of one of the greatest German authorities on mercantile shipping, says the Mail. A halt was perhaps inevitable. In the twenty-five years since 1889 the dimensions of the ocean steamer have risen from the 10,600 Home of the City of Paris to the 58,000 of the Vaterlandin and the unknown displacement of the new Britannice Such progress could not be long maintained. The pace has been

> ENDOWMENT FOR THE BOY SCOUTS.

Regular Steamship Service. Man appeal to the public is made by Lieutenant-General Sir R. Baden-Powell for subscriptions to Lioy Scouts' Endowment Scheme, which is intended place the organisation permanently on its feet. Up to the present about £65,000 of the quarter of a million required has been obtained. One friend For Freight and further in the scouts has promised £500, if same; and another has offered do likewise. Sixty cheques for a hundred pounds (or guiness) each before leaving England for the have been sent, and General East.

Baden-Powell hopes the example will stimulate others. A great work, he points out, lies before the scout movement, especially in the slums of our great industrial cities, where thousands of the poor-class boys are never given a chance to start fairly in the race for life. The offices of the association are at 116, Victoriastreet, S.W.

"All efforts failed trace the owner, and Mr. Hargrave gave it to his son, Mr. O.J. Hargrave, as a keepsike when the latter left for the Malay States. When he arrived at . Legang he met another Englishman, who, noticing one hundred otners will do the the ring on his finger, at once claimed it. He had dropped it, $100, if a thousand others will us he imagined, into his own coat pocket when he had a last round
